They even took on different identities, as the nuns addressed them by number not by name. Menstruation, a subject to which little attention had been paid in psychoanalytic theory before, was one of the main themes in the writings of Mary Chadwick. Sundermeier sees religion as the communal answer given to the experience of death. The police treat calls from the ShotSpotter system with the same urgency as they do call from citizens. Janusz Korczak, forced in the Warsaw ghetto orphanage, called to live amidst violence and death a community that valued learning and living, independence and democracy. To facilitate this, he co-opted the British by founding his own Independent Party in which was completely loyal to the Crown and controlled the legislature following independence.
